

PRICE CAN'T FIND J. MORGAN SMITH

Detective Telegraphs from Washington He Is Unable to Find Trace of "Nan" Patterson's Brother-in-Law.

Escorted by Detective Sergeant Sam Price, Hyman Stern, the pawnbroker from whom the pistol with which "Caesar" Young was shot and killed, is in Washington trying to get a look at "Nan" Patterson's much-wanted brother-in-law J. Morgan Smith. Stern, it is asserted, has already identified a photograph of Smith as the man who went into his store with a young woman the day before the killing of the wealthy bookmaker and purchased the pistol, but Assistant District Attorney Hand is anxious that a more positive identification be made. So far Smith has not been located by the police. Rumors that he is in Washington with his wife have been current, and Mr. Hand yesterday despatched Price and Stern there. Today Price telegraphed the Assistant District Attorney that so far he has been unable to obtain any trace of Smith in the national capital. "Nan" Patterson in the Tombs is chafing under the law's delay. She has been buoyed up by the promises of her counsel, Lawyer Abe Levy, that the prosecution has no case against her and her early release is sure to follow. She has regained her usual composure and now eats heartily. Her daily life in the big prison is monotonous, however, her only visitor outside of her counsel being her aged father. He visits her several times a day bringing fruits and other delicacies each trip. A colored woman, Mrs. Mary White, also accused of murder, as her maid, arranging her coiffure every morning.

PHIPPS AND WIFE FAIL TO AGREE

Another Conference Will Be Held To-Day in Philadelphia to Settle the Couple's Marital Differences.

Following the failure of the attorneys of Lawrence C. Phipps, the Pittsburgh millionaire, and his wife to arrive at a settlement in their marital troubles after a conference in Pittsburgh, a second conference was held in this city and a third conference will be held in Philadelphia to-day, where Mr. Phipps is now said to be. At the Pittsburgh conference Mrs. Phipps demanded $3,500,000 for the support of herself and two children and full possession of the children for six months in every year. This demand was refused by Mr. Phipps, who, after spending several days in a Pittsburgh hotel, left for Philadelphia. Mrs. Phipps is now living at the home of her husband in Pittsburgh, while the two children, who were taken from her by force while she was stopping at a New York hotel, are still at the Denver home of their father. The New York conference was held at the offices of James M. Beck, No. 41 Wall street. At this conference were United States Senator Philander C. Knox, Gen. James W. Young, representing Mrs. Phipps; Platt Rogers, of Pittsburgh; and Judge Platt, of Denver, representing Mr. Phipps. An agreement was not reached and it was decided to hold a third conference in Philadelphia. Mr. Phipps is expected to be present. "I don't think there will be any divorce proceedings," said Mrs. Phipps, when seen in Pittsburgh. There has been no settlement as yet. But you had better see Mr. Phipps. I have been instructed not to talk."
